About me:

For 20 years, Laura MacMorran has resided in Redondo Beach. Her children were raised in Redondo Beach. She works as an urban planner, and a few years ago, helped pass the Redondo Beach current Tree Ordinance. She co-founded Citizens for South Bay Trees, which is an initiative of the South Bay Parkland Conservancy.

About Citizens for South Bay Trees:

Citizens for South Bay Trees is a community-driven initiative to protect, grow, and sustain healthy urban forests in the neighborhoods we call home. We advocate for equitable tree canopy coverage, thoughtful replanting, and long-term stewardship of trees. Through education, policy and grassroots action, we aim to ensure that every neighborhood enjoys the benefits of shade, biodiversity, and beauty for generations to come.
